Absalom Restored

“Three years Absalom had been in exile from his father, and now two years a prisoner at large in his own house, and, in both, better dealt with than he deserved; yet his spirit was still unhumbled, his pride unmortified, and, instead of being thankful that his life is spared, he thinks himself sorely wronged that he is not restored to all his places at court. Had he truly repented of his sin... being in Jerusalem the holy city, would have been very agreeable to him.”
